Richard,

As previously discussed, one of the benefits of LSJ purchasing the materials through Cruzan Gardens is that we will hand tag premium plants, and will grow out materials at our nursery. This would insure that the plants re-flush fully from spending a week in a dark refrigerated container. We will spray, provide root stimulants, fertilize, irrigate, etc. to push new blooms and foliage so Jeffrey doesn't ever have to see a bunch of twigs and sticks being unloaded.

The drawback, however, is that it will take a minimum of 3 weeks from the time we receive the container on STX to turn the materials around to LSJ.

Therefore, if we finalize the sales order this week we would anticipate tagging next week, shipping to STX the week of June 5th (Memorial Day screws up the schedule for loading the previous week), unload June 11th on STX, reload and ship to LSJ the week of July 8th.

You mentioned that LSJ would be getting a large order of Coconut palms shortly, so between that and running irrigation for the plants that we are providing, we won't be far apart on the required timeframe.

There's only one sailing a week (Thurs.)- otherwise we would have more options.

Let me know if you have any questions or require additional information.

Rich,

I made a couple of calls to vendors that we released our holds on. The main item at this point I see an issue with is the (10) Butia palms, namely that they aren't available anymore through the vendor I was working with. I suggest leaving them off the sales order for now, and if we can find them for a reasonable price in FL we can add them back in later. The other option would be to use our Royal palms instead, but I don't know if that fits into Jeffrey's and Chris' planting scheme at the secondary pool.

Without the Butia palms the total would come to $56,146.65, excluding freight. Payment in full is required prior to processing the order. Payments by credit card are subject to a 3% processing fee.

Let me know how you wish to proceed.

Our Internet is down, so I faxed the revised Sales Order to you. As noted, items are F.O.B. Florida, and shipping from St.Croix to LSJ would be through the General or Brigadier, which I under
