[REDACTED] came in and we sorted out her bank situation. Very strange to me, but apparently, HSBC does not allow you to get a TO DATE balance printed...they print statements once a month. Even after getting her all set up to view her account on line, I was still told that we could not see an up to date balance anywhere on the website.

In order to get today's balance on a formal document from the bank, you need to get an Account Verification Letter. So for $20 I have sent her back to her bank to see Wendy who will process this request and she will have the letter tomorrow at 2:00.

([REDACTED] said she had $20 or else I would have given it to her)
