hey,

remember the stuff i mentioned about brain training and education? together with my computer science partner, we have made some superb progress. we have a family of web-based games that we think are quite exceptional. we have meetings set up with Encyclopedia Brit and Pearson, who are both interested. Not sure they will be the way to go as we would rather develop and sell on our own. but as you know, business ain't my thing.

i am attaching a ppt presentation that we will be using. it shows you the potentially massive $$ returns given the intersection of areas that we are targeting.

would be keen to hear any thoughts you might have.

cheers,

-marc
