This week in Kickstarter

We're three weeks into 2014, and we're making Kickstarter better. This week we released a new way for creators to communicate with backers. It's a small but helpful change, if we do say so ourselves.

Projects We Love

![Hello Ruby]

Hello Ruby

By Linda Liukas

Who says you need a screen to teach kids about code? Set to be written and illustrated by programming teacher Linda Liukas, Hello Ruby aims to combine the worlds of software and storytelling to help small children get excited about technology through the adventures of one little girl.

Destroy All Presets: A re-mixable chiptune album

Destroy All Presets: A re-mixable chiptune album

By Doctor Popular

Doctor Popular made his last album on an iPhone and his latest on a Game Boy Advance. With Destroy All Presets, he will release a special version of the album's source files in a Game Boy cartridge, for the purposes of listening, exploring, and remixing.

The Cornershop

By Lucy Sparrow

Cornershop is every item you're used to seeing in a corner newsstand: canned beans, deli meats, and even magazines -- only plush, stuffed, and handmade. Lucy Sparrow's project will create a pop-up art installation where viewers can see and touch all of those things. We never knew canned goods could be so cute.

Build community around your work.

Learn more about starting a project.

A new way to discover new projects.

Get the Kickstarter app for iPhone.

Don't want to keep getting Projects We Love? That's okay, you can unsubscribe.

Find us elsewhere:

F T