Again....with the fees and costs that I owe that offer is not even close to enticing.

we both agreed i am the underdog in the 4th, as they will be in conflict with themselves. . so if you now say no sc. then , I would propose you pay me 100k if i win and I pay you a million if i lose. - dersh is my time, no financial risk to me. still i would like to get it settled or delayed , , cvra , is not the ethical as much as the pr. and judge reaction. i appreciate you taking the time to try to work it out. .

(1) I don't control that call completely. Everyone on my side has wanted the depositions since January and they are finally happening. (2) that case either settles or it doesn't. There is nothing complicated about it. There is nothing that needs more time. I'm being more than reasonable in the offer to settle that case. I do not want that case to turn into our case - where it goes on for years. We take these depositions, add punitives, then get a trial. And it ends. Once and for all.

If it is the other case that is driving the delay, I don't understand that. Clearly one case has nothing to do with the other. And really, considering the facts of that case I could not be more reasonable than I am being there also. I feel like on one hand you say you want a global settlement. That is fine with me so we have tried to work toward that end. But the reality is that you want me to agree to some unreasonable deal.

If we think about the cases, and what was alleged, I'm crazy to be considering the numbers we are talking about. Juries will render multi-million dollar verdicts for me and I believe over $20m. I know you say my reputation has not been harmed. But that's not true. I've done good work to overcome and mitigate the damage but between you and Dersh considerable damage was done.

Fair resolution on that case- option one - payment to me of $5 m inclusive of fees and costs or option two some ratio idea based on the 4th decision. Anything beyond that point adds too many variables and defeats the point.

CVRA I talked to an ethics expert and the previous offer would be acceptable. Would have to fine-tune it but overall it's fine.

I know you share my feeling about not wasting time, and I appreciate your trying to get the best deal possible. But at this point, we are either going to reach an agreement or agree to disagree.
