

From: Jeffery Edwards <jeevacation@gmail.com>

To: Peter Mandelson <[REDACTED]>

Subject: <no subject>

Date: Sat, 04 Oct 2008 15:01:07 +0000

I will call today at about 5 your time.. The financial system , like franken stein, has taken on a life of its own. It no longer responds to its masters. It is inherently unpredictable,able to spread its damage,mutating along the way. It is immune to conventional attacks. It has to be seen like a separate living thing. It is layer upon layer of systems.. Not dissimilar to people. It can reek world havoc, in fact, if Al quaida were clever, it is much more potent than bio or nuclear weapons. It s , killing radius is unlimited. This is not science fiction. The solutions of the past will not work. The system < Due to the speed and complexity of computers, can withstand many attempts to get it under control.. For example just follow the money. IF you owned gold, wha good would it do you. You would have a etal that only was valuable if you exchanged it for money, usually paper money, if not electronic, now your bank says sorry, you can't have it for two weeks, as our capital ration is out of whack.. The shortfalls in the state and municipalities has yet to surface.