Hi Jeffrey,

Apologies for my late reply - I have not had internet access as I spent all the day in town.

Indeed, let me thank you for this opportunity to visit NY once again. I am amazed by this city and always look forward to coming back here. Phantom of the Opera was a beautiful performance, thanks again for the evening with your girls, - I will definitely bring my girls to the play once back in London, they will be fascinated.

On the other hand, please do not get me wrong, but I must have missed something in our conversation. I am an honest person and I do not have any reasons to lie to a person I am meeting for the second time in my life.

In regard to your reference to my CV, please be reminded that drafting documentation was what I used to do while working in the law firm back in Lithuania. I do know how to do it if asked to proceed. However, you were absolutely right about the fact that I have not drafted agreements while undertaking that internship in the law firm in London. I exaggerated this detail on the CV to aim for getting an interview with the law firm. This is not acceptable, and I have to thank you for letting me understand this. I totally agree to have my CV adjusted accordingly.

Furthermore, Tancredi knows everything about me from A to Z. We have had many conversations about my background and things I know about the hedge fund businesses. He has seen my CV and we have talked over all the things that he was concerned with.

You were right to point out that my knowledge in the financial markets is very much low. I do agree with that. Tancredi understood this from the very beginning and offered me some courses in the banks to improve this situation. If Tancredi believes that I need more practice with my English language followed by additional studies in the business school, I assume we will discuss this thoroughly upon his intention and my return.

As for now, my visit is coming to an end and I hope to have professional advice from your side any time I need it. I look forward to starting my business school in London in the near future in order to learn a lot more in the field. Thank you once again for the opportunity to see how professionals work in NY.

All the best,
Vaiva
