

From: Barnaby Marsh <[REDACTED]>
To: Jeffrey Epstein <jeevacation@gmail.com>
Subject: Re:
Date: Mon, 15 Oct 2012 15:55:09 +0000

Not much. I was able to get a small team to do some digging on motivations in crowd behavior and with a special focus on sports, but not much turned up, aside from how poorly mapped it is. The history of football was good to recount, in that in the middle ages whole villages would play each other and it could turn hostile, but perhaps this actually diffused violence overall if it helped people settle petty scores and move on, rather for grudges to fester into something more mutually destructive (thus keeping fit but saving energy for important conflict). Similar things are seen in ritualized conflicts in animals, and one wonders how many ways this is woven into common culture today in social conflicts expressed through the media, etc.

Overall, lots of soft emotional stuff, and probably hard to study from bottom up via complex motivations and emotions but probably easier to understand via the evolution and design of mass entertainment and mass media.

Still, there is potential here....

On Fri, Oct 12, 2012 at 3:44 PM, Jeffrey Epstein <jeevacation@gmail.com> wrote:
anything interstesting,, i am in paris

--

The information contained in this communication is confidential, may be attorney-client privileged, may constitute inside information, and is intended only for the use of the addressee. It is the property of Jeffrey Epstein

Unauthorized use, disclosure or copying of this communication or any part thereof is strictly prohibited and may be unlawful. If you have received this communication in error, please notify us immediately by return e-mail or by e-mail to jeevacation@gmail.com, and destroy this communication and all copies thereof, including all attachments. copyright -all rights reserved