 This Week on Kickstarter

JUNE 21, 2012

It's summer! To celebrate, we've got a sound installation that lets you listen to the sun, a multipurpose pack perfect for the beach, and a quartet of quirky ladies who love to break wind.

In the bag

Mokuyobi Threads is a Brooklyn-based clothing company known for their small runs and snazzy prints, and the Bedford Bag might be their niftiest creation yet. This locally made, multipurpose pack easily converts between a backpack, an over-the-shoulder bag, and a tote — we foresee a lot of spontaneous picnics in the future.

The BWBQ Debut Album- "Breaking In"

by The Breaking Winds Bassoon Quartet

 Category Music

 Location New Haven, CT

There she blows!

The Breaking Winds Bassoon Quartet are a bunch of quirky gals who make music and are not afraid to be the butt of their own jokes. Specializing in classical arrangements of contemporary pop songs, they also incorporate original sketch comedy and some pretty crazy costumes into their live shows. Now, with reeds at the ready, it's time to record a debut album.

 Category Public Art

 Location Burlington, VT

Sounds of the sun

Sun Boxes is a solar-powered sound installation comprised of 20 speakers, each programmed to play a continuous guitar note of varying length in reaction to the weather. As the sun rises and clouds pass overhead, the different loops overlap to create a harmonious, ever-evolving soundscape. It's possible the sun has never sounded so beautiful!
