Thinks software looks good

Like the features which would be helpful such as monthly and quarterly reporting, inter company transfers, and importing brokerage statements (although I do not think they have much there)

Not sure how much better than quickbooks as most other features can be done on quickbooks (such as consolidated statements, check writing, etc)

If they were to try I would not do with current team in place and would have new CFO run this project

One downside is I believe files are hosted by company rather users internal network
