Two-day debating workshop for young people

There are just a few places left on our ever popular debating workshop for students in Year 5 to Year 11 this Easter holiday.

Our workshop on 5th and 6th April 2017 will be designed both for beginners and for those who attended the February half-term and October course last year and would like to build on what they learned.

In small groups that will match their age and experience, students will be able to practise their public-speaking skills and expand their knowledge of the big issues of the day. They will learn from our team of experts how to craft a logical argument and win over an audience; and they will also be taught the all-important skill of listening to the case made by others and responding. The course culminates in a grand debate finale when the students will be able to put their newfound skills to the test.

Student and Parent testimonials

'I enjoyed it so much I did it twice! It gave me the opportunity to meet lots of different people my age who were all really interested and engaged in debating. I found that it helped me to structure and understand arguments, which has been really useful in both debating and school work.'

'I just wanted to say thank you for running such a fantastic workshop. Both our children were really hesitant but couldn't wait to go back for the second day. The quality of their arguments has improved which has had a positive impact on academic performance. We're very glad we chose to send them!'
