His friends got fired from [REDACTED] he blames himself. He believes he has no legacy and everything he did has been undone. Hes not the choice for CEO but inferior candidates are. He doesn't believe there is a [REDACTED] Etc. he doesn't feel valued bc he doesn't have a paying job (he keeps saying he's unemployed) yet doesn't want a typing offered.

Not sure why all this coming to a head now.

On the upside he is loving [REDACTED] and they are loving him. He's considering making it full time early next year.

But lately he's been rapid cycling between super stressed and happy etc. he's constantly on the phone with his previous directs and I don't know if that is therapeutic or just super hard for him. Just don't know. I have asked nothing of him. I don't ask him questions. I try to support him. I bring him fun opportunities, try to involve him in house stuff, find small gifts for him, etc. try to celebrate every single thing possible and see positive side.

I'm not perfect but I am trying super hard.

I'm trying my very best to support him. Moved us to [REDACTED] for some space.

he's being really demanding of me - despite knowing i have a full time and super busy job supporting the [REDACTED] and managing [REDACTED] - for example i have to staff a meeting between [REDACTED] at 2pm on thursday (they have one meeting per year) and [REDACTED] shceduled his [REDACTED] for that exact time and is mad at me that i have this meeting with j [REDACTED]. he's telling me that he has been there for me and why can't i be there for him etc. so please don't tell him that/keep CONFIDENTIAL but not sure how to be upfront to him that i am really working hard. not sure he gets it? thinks i am super woman or something. i have just had [REDACTED] and emotionally hard (he was there for the first few days then left to SFO). i have an extremely hard job right now, trying to maintain a good reputation etc. and find a career path. it's not like i have a billion dollars. i have also lived through this past year with him and it has been much harder on me than him. i am reaching a breaking point. i don't know what to do. i love him and want to support him but my life is super super hard right now too.

don't tell him all this ok? just need advice
