July 11, 2013

Summer is heating up, which means you're probably looking for ways to beat the heat. Our solution? Video Mode, the most fun way to explore cool projects while zoning out in front of the air conditioner. It's how we stumbled upon this week's projects we love!

Follow the Money

This documentary, about big money's effect on public policy, was all set to air on PBS— until big money and politics came into play. As The New Yorker points out, the reason could be the subject of the film, Charles Koch, a billionaire businessman whose ties to PBS run deep.

Porcelain states

Everyone is a local somewhere. Such is the driving force behind The Fifty United Plates, a design project to create porcelain plates in the shape of every state in the US. Peach cobbler in the shape of Georgia! A Minnesota-shaped apple pie! A Colorado quiche! We could go on all day, but we've got baking to do.
