Please advise how you want me to handle. If Fancelli and Molyneux resolved their issues, why are we providing a list? I would like to tell her that Fancelli and Molyneux met last week and resolved all their issues regarding the punch list, which I sent to you (Donna Glasgow) in August. As to service of process, we will not serve either Fancelli or his company while they are on St. Thomas or the Island.

Thanks.

Darren

Darren,

My client would like to do the work requested of him if that is possible, but still requires a response as to which punchlist is the operative one, what is the scope of the new work requested, and also your client's agreement that neither Mr. Fancelli nor his company will be served with process if he should go to the island.

Darren,

Peter Edelman has been on trial and has been unable to respond to you. So as not to lose time, and without responding directly to your e-mail to him, can you confirm that a punch-list dated September 8 and sent directly from your client to Mr. Molyneux is now the operative document? Please let us know either way, and if it is the document with which Molyneux and Epstein have agreed to work, please provide it to us. We have not, to date, been involved in any "agreement" between the parties, but if there is one, it must of course be formalized to avoid further disputes. I will be out of the office this afternoon but reachable by e-mail. Thank you.

Donna
