I am writing to you regarding your Craigslist ad for an Interior Designer. I earned a Master from Harvard University's Graduate School of Design and have worked for a number of years as a Senior Interior Designer. Although I am trained as an architect, my passion is interiors. I have been focused on interior design for years and have worked with some of the most selective designers in the international arena on projects of incredible quality. Currently I am doing residential interior design work and teaching a housing design studio for third year undergraduates at the New Jersey Institute of Technology as an Adjunct Professor. Prior to this I worked as an Interior Designer at Rockwell group where my projects ranged from residential to the hospitality sector. Prior to Rockwell group, I worked as a Senior Interior Designer with the Saladino Group, where I designed and managed high-end residential renovations that involved careful selection of fine furniture, antiques, and fabrics. The projects ranged from NYC apartments to homes on the oceanfront. I worked with an intense level of decorative finishes, fine mill work and custom furniture design. In addition to design, my role as lead Senior Designer encompassed everything from budgets, to overseeing ordering, coordination with architects, daily client interface, and temporary storage.

I offer the eye and the ability to put together a palette of textures, fabrics, finishes, furniture and accessories as well as a unique mixture of high-end construction knowledge and management skills, that can shape any interior. I have worked extensively on sets of detailed construction documents and have designed, managed and supervised many interiors projects.

I hope that you will see the possibilities I offer you by reviewing my work in person. I have enclosed a PDF copy of my resume for your review. I look forward to meeting you.

Sincerely,

Sabrina Pagani
