NJGeek81 says: I've always been a little underwhelmed at my introductory emails. The real sticking point is how to close the email without seeming presumptuous.

When One Partner Loves the Other More

suzyque says: Sometimes I feel my boyfriend of one year loves me more than I love him. It's not that I don't love him, it's just I can't quite meet his intensity. My question I guess, is it OK to be a little mismatched in your feelings? Do I just need to find one of the few quality women that actually thinks she deserves to be treated well? Or, is it just that women are made that way, and they need to feel like the guy is indifferent to a certain extent?
