i was starting to outline /design some designs and ideas for presentation of what we were talking about. last we spoke about it you had discussed us going to do some interviews with people for content. we should discuss next step b/c i will run with whatever you like....(the last two weeks i have been cramming to get a table built that will be in the Wired pop-up shop mid November so have admittedly been focused on that).

as for john crouch - how would you like to proceed with that as well.

and also, i like being the challenge of being around you. it feels like new knives. (more meetings good)
