Christ, that must be a relief! Will add.

I am going to finish working on the funding stuff today. Later, I will send you it over to you a little more flushed out. The AI part needs to be carefully worded, so that they don't keep going down the wrong path of building widgets. Need to be self-reflective, improve/learn, but not according to the constraints put in by the designer/programmer, etc. Need to get the language right, otherwise, you get the same junk from the AI folks, as they have been putting out all these years.
