Luckily, there is something we can do about it.... That's what we are trying so hard to do. What is so frustrating is we just got the slate wiped clean, and to have this new stuff come up... very annoying for all.

I am not going to bore you with details any more. Just continue with what we are doing...

Jeff,

It is 4:30 a.m. I have been up ALL NIGHT working on this project along with my team pulling all nighters too. Please understand that all this needs actual content and specifics, which has to be created. Not just mentions like below. As you well know, all these people are very serious people, and they have to be written up correctly and with a proper understanding and insight into what they are doing. This isn't something that can be done by hackers or search engine experts/webmasters, etc.

I have enough right now to work on from what you have already supplied, and we are building out real sites, which will then be sent out to the various services that will insure it getting top treatment on the search engines.

Another group is building a different Jeffrey Epstein (a false identity) site on sports, and they are writing up all the content on that, as I know nothing about sports...

Did you get my earlier posts from this morning?
