jackie norton.. yes..

she will mostly act as an observer, except for the 1 hour when we will have a discussion about how to implement the program at ASU, when you can go for a meditation session... She is in charge of leadership gifts of $1M or more, and she needs to understand not only what we want to do, but who is involved and what the potentials are. If you like talking to Barnaby, you will be very impressed with her...

Is she on the Advisory Board? what is her name, and I would like to know how she will improve the discussion.

she is a brilliant woman.. a lawyer...(I think she may have been attorney general or something like that in Arizona before Michael Crow talked her into joining the university). I talked to her today precisely because I wondered about that... and had thought about rethinking her participation... but I am convinced she will be a useful addition.. she plans to 'observe' but she is so remarkable that I expect you will enjoy her, and she will improve the discussion in the end.. Also, it is important I think that she get a sense of exactly what we can do, because, from a practical perspective, she is going to help make it happen. You will like her.. I do.. she is one of my favorite people at the University.

In washington DC now.. feeling a little more invigorated and upbeat.. even though I still haven't slept more than 6 hours in the past few days..
