Also ... I made a lot more money doing carbon finance. My methane methodology turns out to be pretty solid. Im ok at science but not great w money. Plus we can't make profit as a charitable org. So I have hired a team of lawyers to build this nonbank financial institution that takes my carbon credit money, keeps 5 percent for ops and then reinvests in infrastructure to start the process over in a bunch of cities.

Need some help forward thinking. Like what do you do w the money while it sits there (time between when it comes from carbon market to when it goes to city X)? Savings? Take on risk and invest?

No one has done what im trying to do but I think it is the only way.

Help me think.
