I have this sculpture, which could be built large scale. Watch the movie to see what happens when you would walk around it.

Notice from one angle, you see a set of impossible vertical blocks, and can see straight through, and from another angle, you see a set of horizontal impossible blocks, and can see straight through. Aside from the impossibility of both constructs, how come you don't see the horizontal lines when you see the vertical configuration, and the vertical lines when you are looking at the horizontal configuration...
