its me again,

i want to start doing samples for the room near the entrance

i attached here some pictures with some ideas i did i in computer, just to know in what direction i should go. yo said once that you would like that room to look like a jewelery box. would you like something similar somehow to the picture no 11?

in the pictures i attached here, the white pattern would be mother of pearl, and then some gold leaf..etc..like the molding, ceiling. but i want to know if you somehow what you would like..like more classical..with a repetition of the pattern, or taking a pattern and the distort so then would not be that classical, or use a pattern and then put it on the wall in a different angle not vertical or horizontal...lets say 15 degrees.

if i start do samples i have to use mother of pearl and i have to use laser cutting...and thats kind of expensive..that's why i want to know in what direction i should go.

in some of the picture i put some other a little crazy ideas...like some abstract painting, modern on the main part of the wall, and then the bottom part of the wall the molding and the ceiling classic with gold leaf and mother of pearl ..

thanks
