

From: "[REDACTED]" on behalf of Ben Goertzel <[REDACTED]>
To: Jeffrey Epstein <jeevacation@gmail.com>
Subject: Re: Happy Birthday!! .. etc. ;)
Date: Wed, 20 Jan 2010 06:01:17 +0000

One more thing .. your "high school teacher recommendation letter" analogy is not apropos. Those guys would write me great job recommendation letters if I asked them. That's a different issue.
They think I'm a brilliant guy, but they aren't going to endorse somebody else's AGI project as being the secret sauce, since they of course are wedded to the (rather different) ideas underlying their own work...

On Wed, Jan 20, 2010 at 1:38 PM, Ben Goertzel <[REDACTED]> wrote:
> Maybe I should wait till after your birthday to pursue the AI > discussion, but it's fresh in my mind now so I'll send this email now
> ... if you don't feel like reading it on your birthday you'll wait ;-)
> ...
>
> ...
>
> Seriously, my view is
>
> -- those letters show that, in the view of some prestigious and rather > conservative AI profs, this is not a bogus project. It's a real, > solid research project ... it's good AI research
>
> -- whether the project will lay the golden egg, those profs did not > have the info to judge. And unless someone pays them a bunch of $$ to > study my project carefully, they are not going to pay enough attention > to gather enough info to judge
>
> How I think you should look at this is: "if Ben has even a 5% > chance of success, it's worth the $$, because the upside potential is > TREMENDOUS"
>
> And I think you SHOULD consider it to have a 5% chance of success ... greater...
>
> The fact that these AI profs think it's interesting but aren't > convinced of its transformative potential, doesn't mean anything > bad... if you think so, you don't understand academics ;-p
>
> If the $$ is an issue for you, I can do this for $500K/year here in > China, using some of my Brazilian team as well.
>
> $1.5M for the first true breakthrough in AI history, and a big step > toward the Singularity ;-)
> ... it's a lot of $$ to most people, but > not much to you. What else are you donating to that has the same > potential? The labs you've funded at Harvard and MIT and Stanford are > good labs, but they're not going to change the world.... My project > will, if someone with $$ and vision will fund it...
>
> But, you already know what I think and feel.... I'm not a salesman;
> and I don't really know how else to convince you, except to somehow > build the damn thing on somebody else's dollar, and then along with > everyone else you'll see in retrospect that I actually wasn't full of > shit ;p ...
>
>
>
>

>
> On Wed, Jan 20, 2010 at 1:30 PM, Ben Goertzel <[REDACTED]> wrote:
>> Oh, by the way, I was so concerned about my AI project I didn't notice >> you mentioned your birthday in the chat...
>>
>> Happy birthday!! ;-)
>>
>> Now if you want to have 100000 more birthdays you should fund my AI >> project so we can create a thinking machine that will solve the >> problem of mortality!!! ;-D
>>
>> ben
>>
>>
>>
>> --
>> Ben Goertzel, PhD
>> CEO, Novamente LLC and Biomind LLC
>> Director of Research, Singularity Institute for AI
>> External Research Professor, Xiamen University, China
>> [REDACTED]
>>
>> "I have a deep nostalgia for the future." -- Max More
>>
>
>
>
> --
> Ben Goertzel, PhD
> CEO, Novamente LLC and Biomind LLC
> Director of Research, Singularity Institute for AI
> External Research Professor, Xiamen University, China
> [REDACTED]
>
> "I have a deep nostalgia for the future." -- Max More
>

--
Ben Goertzel, PhD
CEO, Novamente LLC and Biomind LLC
Director of Research, Singularity Institute for AI
External Research Professor, Xiamen University, China
[REDACTED]

"I have a deep nostalgia for the future." -- Max More