what if we could put a port into your brain that telepathically transmitted messages.
that would be supercool.

hey do you want me to look into funding the igem conference for international college students in synthetic biology?
you could consider:

1. funding the event and the prize money (scholarship for tuition/room & board etc).
2. putting together a pre-event steering committee meeting and introducing some new board members not sure how much it costs them to put this all together and who is currently in charge. can find out if you want.

have fun with boris...
