The appeal doc must be great. . much harder now that they have admitted to ignoring less damaging info. Over and over. . makes them seem fair. This is only about the emotion. ! negotiation etc. legally you are done

There are several things my smart mind has noticed about their doc. So wait and see my draft.

How about this? A little more direct and honest and still lets people know before buzzfeed and deals with ththe many questions from fans that will come over twitter after story.

“Many people have inquired about the future of the Origins Program. My second five year term as director of expired July 1 of this year and the university has decided it will not be renewed for another term. It has been a great honor to create and lead Origins over the past decade. I am very proud of what my team has accomplished for the university and broader community during this time. The University has appointed my close colleague Lindy Elkins Taunton to be the new director of this program and am confident she will move Origins forward in new and interesting ways. “

So when 1000 twitter questions come in after buzzfeed story I should just say nothing?
This states that university has decided not to renew me. It also is my only statement about the past decade. it is heartfelt. It is a statement about the future of Origins. Not a statement about me. I can write something else about me later. Or nothing.

I agree but I need to say something. It is a eulogy. It leaves much to the imagination and the supporters will say it is unfair and the haters will say about time. But it doesn't let buzzfeed lead. And I cannot allow that.

I intend to allow public scrutiny of all that has transpired in an air of total transparency so that the public can make up its mind. However at the present time my appointment will not be renewed as director of origins. Then
