Re: Jane Doe v United States, Case No. 08-80736-CIV-MARRA

Dear Judge Marra:

As a United States citizen, mother, wife, and volunteer advocate on behalf of sex abuse victims who resides in Los Angeles, California, this letter is sent with hope of communicating to you the seriousness of the current matters before you, especially as they relate to the current Jeffrey Epstein cases before you. As a federal officer of the court, I want to thank you for your service and difficult challenges. Your job cannot be easy; however, there is a big picture and an opportunity for you to lead by public example, something our children desperately need at this time.

If you issue a court ruling that the federal non-prosecution agreement between the United States of America and Jeffrey Epstein is legal, it will set case precedent throughout the U.S. that will continue to place the protections of minor children at serious risk. I am also starting to fear that there are many other federal non-prosecution agreements that may exist in the U.S., without the public's knowledge. My fears stem from the fact that in January 2009, the USDOJ announced a federal investigation relating to the handling of sex abuse crimes committed against children by employees of the Archdiocese of Los Angeles. As of this date, almost ten years later, there is silence from the USDOJ. Please consider the following:

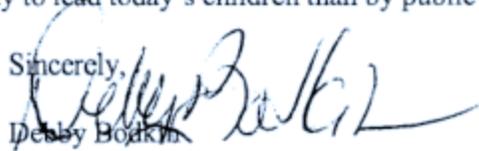

1. Mr. Epstein escaped state and federal prosecutions of the law because of his WEALTH, ABILITY to retain legal experts, and POLITICAL INFLUENCE (hereinafter "WAP").
2. Minor children do not possess WAP. Children do not vote and do not contribute to political campaigns. This places children at risk and the adults with the responsibility to act in accordance with the laws governing the United States of America continue to fail children and families.

As a society, how can we expect our children to act with respect, integrity and honor as citizens and/or non-citizens of the United States when wealth, ability to retain legal experts and political influence, aka WAP, are the laws of the United States of America.

Honorable Judge Kenneth A. Marra

With respect, please issue a public ruling setting precedent that the Epstein/United States federal non-prosecution is illegal. There is no better way to lead today's children than by public example. Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

Debby Bokor

P.S. If required by federal court communications guidelines, I have no problem with my letter being made part of the public record; however, I respectfully request that my address, phone and email be withheld from the record to ensure the protections of my husband, children, family and friends.
