

Editor:Re "The

- > Cowardly Labor Secretary" (editorial, March 3):Your editorial's
- > conclusions are in profound conflict with the reality as we,
- > Jeffrey Epstein's current and former lawyers, knew it.
- > Alexander
- > Acosta, the labor secretary, as United States attorney for
- > the Southern District of Florida in 2007, oversaw a plea
- > deal for Mr. Epstein involving charges of solicitation of prostitution
- involving
- > young women. Your underlying premise is that Mr. Acosta had
- > capitulated and not filed federal charges because Mr.
- > Epstein had a "high-priced defense team." This was categorically
- > denied by the Southern District's then first assistant,
- > Jeffrey H. Sloman, in an Op-Ed
- > article in The Miami Herald on Feb. 15. Mr. Sloman
- > correctly represented the existence of "significant legal
- impediments to {federally} prosecuting what was, at heart, a local sex
- abuse case." He also correctly represented that the government
- > had achieved its principal objectives — a felony plea,
- > incarceration, millions of dollars in
- > monetary settlements, and lifetime sex offender registration
- > — through its agreement with Mr. Epstein. That agreement was
- > reviewed at multiple levels of the Justice Department. An - > agreement rather than a trial is how over 97 percent of
- > federal cases get resolved,
- > through negotiations by two teams of experienced > professionals. The case lacked the credible and compelling proof that is required by federal criminal statutes. That the guilty plea > was required in a state not federal court reflected the absence of > evidence that Mr. Epstein used the internet, or commercially trafficked women to others, > engaged in force, fraud or coercion, used drugs or alcohol > to entice young women who came to his house to exchange > sexual massages for money, or in > other ways violated federal law. Your claims regarding > the number of young women involved in the investigation were > vastly exaggerated, there was no “international > sex-trafficking operation” > and there was never evidence that Mr. Epstein “hosted sex > parties” anywhere, at anytime

> . Finally, Mr. Epstein > has gone to prison and made enormous monetary settlements > required under his negotiated agreement. He is entitled to > finality like every other defendant.