Larry,

The dip process is expensive because you have to completely take everything off the monuments then remove the existing veneer.

What is the issue with the current wood. The most economical way is to sand and clear coat. This works as long as the wood has not been sanded behind the minimum depth.

Let me know.

Thanks

Gene,

'Can i ask you a general question regarding interior pricing,.

I have attached the photo on the BBJ interior we are in pursuit,.

I know you've done this many times in the past, from Green to refurbish,.

Could you provide only a price range estimate,. I need to re-Venere the wood in this BBJ, exactly the same wood,.,color etc,. Or is there more cost effective or simpler process to apply clear coat and buff the wood to bring back a nice finish?

Could you provide a ball park price range?

I;ve heard of another process, I thought your company was also doing,. a Faux finish paper application on BBJ's bulk heads and side panels.

1-Let me know if you could give me a price range for wood?

2-Price for New Carpet?

3-price for Re-Plating the Gold latches to Brushed Nickel,.

4-we also plan to accomplish Lower cabin altitude mod you supplied pricing already.

5-Paint exterior,. VIP Price and airline Price please.

6-we also, received 2 extra AUX tanks with this purchase, and would like to install as well. We currently have a 5 tank Aux system, which would bring us to a 7 tank Aux fuel system,

Thank you,

Larry Visoski
