But... I am trying to take my Airline Transport Pilot test. I took the written exam almost 2 years ago which means I have to take the ATP check ride by the end of this month. The best way to do it is to get a recurrent or new type rating and the ATP sign-off is just part of it. The least expensive option I found is 12k for an old Citation type or Larry tells me 14.3k for a GIV recurrent, which is more useful. I can't pay that now but if I miss the deadline, I'll have to spend an extra 5k just to take the written again because the rules have since changed and they now require additional training. Any chance you can help with the school?
