i am sending this 'gmail' as slightly more private than Rutgers but we know there is no such thing as privacy on the internet, so i look forward to a long walk talking through some of this but can not resist writing you now i have left Rutgers, and am now 80 miles south, feeling better with every mile. i fly to Ft Lauderdale Sunday and will set up a home there for the next six months i hope to see you shortly, we have much to discuss and better done in private i met with John Brockman on Monday quite by surprise—turns out he saw Wild Life and tweeted it to all his tweeties for which i was grateful, so we had lunch together—wife, son, himself seemed fine then the conversation turned to you two things of interest first i learned of restrictions imposed on you on re-entry in the state, restrictions that would cause me not to visit the state secondly i learned of other social restrictions, i am sure painful to endure let me say no more

i will call you from Florida bob
