I'm here; but the timing is dependent on Apple.

He uses over 900 GB of data, so it HAS to be a 1TB MacBook Pro, which is not a configuration stocked in the retail stores.

I've saved the configuration in this cart for you:

It's listed as "in stock", that probably means that they have it in the warehouse in PA and if you ordered today with expedited shipping, would ship tomorrow (hopefully) & arrive on Monday. I can set it up Monday afternoon and have it ready for his arrival on Tuesday.

That's best case scenario. If they decide to ship from China, it'll be a week (worst case scenario).

The other option would be to call Tekserve -- who are closed right now obviously -- and see if they have the configuration in stock for pickup.

My recommendation is that you place the order with Apple right away, and if we don't get a ship notification by tomorrow afternoon, call Tekserve @ (2███████████nd see if they have it for pickup.

This is the configuration (bold items are what needs to be read to them):
