>> · I am thrilled to welcome you to the Annual Fact vs. Fiction Luncheon & Symposium for the fourth time; It is so wonderful to see so many familiar faces
>> · I am pleased to announce that next year the Fact vs. Fiction luncheon will take place in the spring; we hope you will consider joining us then!
>> · This year we are lucky to have the luncheon presented by the Marisa Acocella Marchetto Foundation which is a supporter of new and integrative treatments for women undergoing and surviving breast cancer. The foundation is a supporter of Mount Sinai Beth Israel and the Dubin Breast Center and we are grateful for their support.
>>
>> · Before we begin the program I would like to introduce you to Marisa Acocella Marchetto, a Breast Cancer survivor, advocate and supporter.
>> · Marisa Acocella Marchetto is a cartoonist for The New Yorker. She is the author of the groundbreaking graphic memoir Cancer Vixen. Please join me in welcoming her.

>> Remarks for Eva
>> Thank you so much, Marisa. Your advocacy for breast cancer patients is incredible. Marisa is the author of the bestselling graphic novel Cancer Vixen, and her new novel Ann Tenna just came out in September – it has been receiving rave reviews already, everyone should go read it.
>> I am so grateful to everyone here for coming today. [REDACTED] really proud to say that the Center, which has been open for almost 5 years, has seen almost 100,000 patient visits. We have a staff of 75 full time employees and 20 full time physicians. We continue to serve patients from every New York City neighborhood and throughout the Tri-State area, regardless of their insurance status or ability to pay.

>> I hope you all have a lot of smart, thought-provoking questions for our amazing panel of experts. They will shortly introduce themselves, but before that I want to introduce you to a friend of the Dubin Breast Center and a very close friend of mine. For the fourth year in a row we are very lucky to have Perri Peltz as our moderator. Perri is a distinguished television news journalist and public health advocate. She is the host of "Doctor Radio Reports," a one hour, weekly program about public health issues for the Sirius XM network. Please join me in welcoming Perri.
