attached response, regarding site visit by Geologist

How do you wish to proceed?

Mr. Gordon,

I was in Matt's office when you called and I suggested that he forward any email's regarding your conversation.

Dr. Cather, myself, and Dr. Lisenbee at the South Dakota School of Mines have all done quite a lot of mapping in this area. I think Lisenbee actually did the work in and around Comanche Pass.

I'm sure any one or all three of us would be happy to do a walk/drive/ride through of your client's property if we were in the area, but we just don't have the time to go there.

I would suggest one of two options.

1) Provide us with the GIS coordinates of the property or simply go to Google Earth and capture a screen view of the property and its surroundings and send that to a scientist who is agreeable to discussing the property with you.

I would be happy to do this kind of thing. I could study the imagery and the geology on my computer and then I could arrange a time to call/email your client and walk him/her through their property virtually. This would be almost as good as an in-person walk through and it would be "free".

2) Contract with an expert and pay them for a private tour. I would be able to do this, but it would not be cheap. For private consulting I get $1000/day including travel.

At any rate, I would do option 1 and then if your client really wants a private tour we could discuss it.

Sincerely,

Charles Ferguson, Ph.D, WY PG 2865
