Im aware, some things are out of my control. . again I am coming to geneve nexxt week, it seems silly for everyone we could do the prebuy in the states if erope centers are closed . on another note. . your calif deal is being shopped actively to say the least.

Jeff,

Time Kills Deals and this is what has happened.

The Owner has received an Offer through Boeing and it is 15% higher than yours, they are a current BBJ Operator and they like this aircraft for the Range capabilities.

They are also Extremely happy witht the layout and understand they will need to refurbish the Aircraft.

I had a call with the Owner and they Just DO NOT see you going through with this and they rightfully said every Promise you made through me you have not gone through with this and they acknowledge you were the only Buyer and they were working with you, but you are not the ONLY buyer and there are two further offers that they are looking to as more seriours than yours. If you recall you were going to close in March and we are in mid June.

The above is my understanding of the situation. The Only way you have any chance of buying this aircraft is to perform and not continue to drag your feet even though it has not been intentional.

As Ever

Alireza
