I am personally supportive of this approach, and how you got there, but I can't commit for David until I talk to him with the offer in hand. I personally think one of two things will happen: either he will accept or he will propose a modest change, initial, and send the docs back. Once I have something in writing I will be able to drive this quickly to a conclusion. I would just never tell you "yes" and then look bad in your eyes, if he slips a bit on the cash piece...

Thanks, Jeffrey. Do you think you can have Gunderson make these edits to the draft and send the offer to me in writing? That will really help me push things along.

That and please ask them to remove the "t" from David's last name.

you were right, boris put in 150 david 100. so 3/5 of money is boris boris 2/5 david. . so from the 250 deduct the 3/5 that is boris . or 90 k , so boris keeps the account and gives david a check for 310k. no contingencies as you and discussed and we are done
