Jeffrey,

These days I made some researches about different programs , considering how much time and effort it will take , what kind of skills I will learn and etc... It took a lot of time to consider because of my cowardice ... and It brought me to the point that near 5-6 months I will devote my entire time to chinese/ business Chinese - currently I am searching for Intensive full day studying programs.

After courses I will be trying to find a job where I can use my communication skills + languages in the company which has business with China . Depending on my job progress I will consider an application for master program at university .

What do you think about this plan?
