Importance: Normal

Think of the best pretrial motion that this relates to; too many risks going anywhere else with it. Once filed, its available in other cases.

Not sure how the prior law firm would have received these emails but they surely have a chain of custody, a disc from which they were printed, others before/after. You don't want [REDACTED] to be able to say they were inadvertently disclosed and must be returned i.e. inadmissible which is a lawyer's first move when his emails/work product were disseminated. Seems different than the Rothstein emails which may have come from a separate discovery production. Not to in anyway discourage a pretrial proactive approach, but together they are most devastating if [REDACTED] (not dreaming you have them) first denies the content and then is confronted with his own writings – last night/today's .
