i really need your help. the backer of my publishing project for [REDACTED] ( see attached ) pulled out yesterday leaving me one month to publish and distribute her book with all the media placements already in place.

the best way i know how to make it still happen is to sell off all the inventory we have in stock by developing an ambassador program that asks a handful of people to contribute $1,500 - $2,500 as a sponsorship donation to help build out kids libraries at schools/organizations that want our product.

I need to raise a further $15,000 and can likely do it, but i have a tiny window to turn it around and from the people I've so far considered everyone wants to know whether it can be a tax deductible donation.

I appreciate this isn't your cup of tea ( at all ) but pulling off this project now is of extreme importance to me, moreover because of how it could (will ) positively impact my visa which has three months left on it.

Is there a way for Chocolate Sauce to align with Enhanced Education?
