Dear Noam and Valeria,

Please see below the emails I have received from Max dated February 1st, and a few minutes ago today. How would you like me to respond, and can you please update me regarding your current thinking?

Best,

Hello again Deborah –

[REDACTED] writing to follow up on my message to you of February 1st (copied below). I've not heard back from you, nor have I heard from Noam. If you could provide me with any updated information about the appointment of my successor [REDACTED] be grateful to receive it, and if Noam has expressed an interest in any further principal distributions from the marital trusts I hope you will be encouraging him to provide some supporting financial information, as we've previously discussed.

Thanks, and looking forward to your reply, if one can be made.

Max

Good afternoon Deborah –

Over the course of the weekend of January 13th I exchanged several emails with Noam. The topics covered were (a) the circumstances under which Carol established her revocable trust, (b) the administration of the resulting marital trusts, and (c) the process of selecting my successor as trustee. Noam specifically instructed me to limit my responses to him and not to copy anyone other than parties he openly copied in our exchanges. (I don't know if you were [REDACTED] of course.) Noam rejected my suggestion that it would be better if we included his counsel in our exchanges. Since those exchanges I've heard nothing further and [REDACTED] wondering if the process of identifying my successor has progressed. Can you provide me with any kind of an update by chance?

Thanks in advance for whatever reply you might offer,

Max
