Doctor said endoscopic brow lift is a much better option.

It was interesting, I think he is right. He showed me how he would do it. No scar. He would use a little device called endotyne 3.0 to hold it in place which then dissolves in 6months. He showed me pictures of this compared to cutting the eyelid which leaves a little mark. He drew on my eye to show me where he would cut if that's what I wanted and then he pulled the corner up on the side to show me what the lift would look like..

He also laughed at the [REDACTED], asked me who did that to me and if I wanted him to fix it.
