Mr. Swaine asked me if he could talk to me about Jeffrey Epstein and I told him no and had no comment and hung up. This was the extent of our conversation.

Do you wish any other response?

Joe Ackerman

Dear Mr Ackerman and Mr Goldberger,

I just spoke with Mr Ackerman briefly over the phone. I'm preparing an article for publication in tomorrow's Daily Telegraph and wanted to give you every opportunity to comment.

In an interview transcript filed in the Epstein v Rothstein case, [REDACTED], a former employee of Mr Epstein, makes various allegations. These include:

- A lengthy repetition of her previously stated claim that from the age of 15 she was paid to travel around the world with Mr Epstein and give him "erotic massages" and otherwise sexually satisfy him, and that she was paid to give similar massages to his friends, and that he sexually abused many under-aged girls.
- That the Duke of York is among friends of Mr Epstein who "knows a lot of the truth" about Mr Epstein's alleged abuse of underaged girls, and that lawyers for Brad Edwards should try to take sworn testimony from him.
- That she's "really scared" to reveal the names of the eight friends of Mr Epstein's that she erotically massaged, because "some of these people are really influential in power".

I would be grateful if you would comment on these allegations, or point me towards any documentation that directly addresses them.

With thanks and best wishes

Jon Swaine
