I meant to write start of Sept; hope yr not in Ulan Bator by this time--I was slowed up by crises this end; the "culture line" is a better app than car streams or prophylactic mem stream: it's a publishing as well as a tech proposition--what Time, New Yorker etc were in their day, network TV & so on--the new new yorker will be on the net, but doesn't look like today's net stuff (or like the old new yorker). Same stream underpinning, but the goal is a Murdoch property as well as tech. Could I send you something brief about it (a few tough bullets), or talk?

won't bug you (much), but if you have time to talk or meet (any day nxt wk?) pls let me know. 2 possible projects, not expensive, results soon. but large implications.

I know where the field is going. Lord knows I'm not the only one, but there are not many of us either. We could do something about it instead of just watching predictions come true & swearing.
