Good Morning,

If the towel rail was to be placed outside the shower area, the longest it could be is 16 inches at present it is 24 inches - being able to hold 2 towels, but not bath sheets

13 & 14 - door swing

15, 16, 17, 18 - location of towel rail, we cannot place a door stop on the upper part of the door, but John can place a door jam stop about 4 inches from the wall which would work fine

Clearly you could buy another smaller towel rail set and use the one which is on site outside the closet area.

What about hand towels etc near the vanity area?

Please advise

Hi Sarah,

I agree it would be more practical right outside the shower area. Yes, it can be cut down, will be able to hold 2 towels, but not the bath sheets. The big problem is that the door opens into the space, hence will hit a stool for sure. I will mark out the options with "blue tape" including door stop, we could mount on the door rather than floor which you would step on all the time. If worse comes to worse perhaps the use of big rings or hooks could you cut down the pipes on the towel rail so it would fit right outside the shower? If not, I can always order a smaller one. I think it would be nice to have right one right outside the shower, or else have the towels folded on a stool in that space outside the shower.

Will forward ASAP

Good Afternoon,

Require answers to the following in the Pool Cabana

1, 2, & 3 - heights of wall sconces?

5, 10 - require location of towel rail, please note it is too long to have just outside the shower

6, 7, 8 - only location is between the entry door and closet

Please advise thank you

Warmest regards
