Figuring out:

1. Criteria for projects
2. Advisory board
3. Right legal structure
4. How much philanthropist should talk to scientist over the website

Any thoughts about all that?

I've talked to a number of scientists about Satio. I realized that many of them are tremendously depending from universities and hate that.

Liberating scientists from bureaucracies might be a good message for that... it's a very long-term goal but feels like a right direction following general gig economy trend where you less depends on organizations.

We're already videoshooting some scientists to play with right format to present their projects.

Got it. Will shape it.

Is it a bad idea to limit the access to only who is over $1B wealth? I've noted that it's different how millioners and billioners support science/non-profits. Millioners usually trying to make it bring some profit to their business, billioners - not Anyone in Boston that I should meet while I'm here this week? Joi/his assistants haven't been responding.

Meeting Joscha, Lukin, some other quantum physicists.

I put together Satio deck (it's how I named 'kickstarter for science' project) - attached.

Looking for two types of people right now:

- scientists/projects to fund (really cool and unique and searching for financing). Have a few in pipeline, creating a funnel;
- potential advisors to select and curate best projects (established scientists able to say yes/know on projects sourced).

Attached is more info.

It's really early, lots of things to figure out but I thought you might have some ideas about whom to meet.

Masha
