Hi Jeffrey...

This is confidential, please: I've made the final short list to be next president of the Social Science Research Council, based in NYC (with a 32M budget, this year). I'll be out there at some point in early April for the final interviews (I've had three sets of them, so far). I'll drop you a note when the date is set and see whether we can connect.

My goal is to combine that organization with my current one. More on this next time we talk.

Meanwhile, my book on Top Brain/Bottom Brain is coming along well. I've given two talks on it, and the audience seems to love it. I've got a new test that assesses "default cognitive style." We are in the final stages of validating it. I'll send it to you when it's done (it's only 20 items).

You OK?
