Every minute in Paris is already booked (overbooked) and it is less than a day.

However we should think about later in the year (early next year) –

Lets discuss it mid week.

we might try Lucas Papademos -- former interim PM and ECB guy from Greece. The head of the central Bank in Ireland, Patrick Honohan is also very good. Vitor Gaspar -- finance minister from Portugal and another former ecb is also very good. Then from the UK: Adair Turner, head of the FSA. Then there are the economists: Ken Rogoff et all. Or Paul de Gruuwe. <http://www.econ.kuleuven.ac.be/ew/academic/intecon/degrauwe/>

From the IMF -- Olivier Blanchard, he oversees all their research and is an authority on what ails Europe. is it possible that you and bill come to paris the 9th or 10th
