Dear Terje,

After weighting up all the options, I have decided not to take the trip to Norway this year and postpone it January 2013. To make the visit meaningful and productive, I would need two full business days, which is practically impossible given the busy schedule I face till the end of the year. I am looking to going to Norway around the time of Davos, which is January 23-27. Once we figure out the preliminary dates, I will let you know. I greatly appreciate your efforts and I look forward to staying in close contact.

> Dear Kairat, may I suggest the following for your visit to Norway: you spend the 23 of November in Stavanger. On the 24th I will arrange a working lunch in Oslo with a small group of key people in politics and economics of interest to you, and a similar dinner in the evening with an emphasis on the business community. If you can stay on through the 25th we can arrange bilateral follow ups. If such a frame for the visit is ok, I will shortly come up with a list of names and institutions to participate.

>> Dear Kairat, thanks again for a wonderful evening in London. I thoroughly enjoyed you bringing me to the launching of your dad's book. Reading it , and feeling the sweetness of his pen, has really touched my heart. What parents! Am now in Oslo. Pls give me again the precise time, so that I make no mistakes, for your visit here. When are you in Stavanger, and when in Oslo? I will come up with a suggested program for your stay in the capital. Pls also send me info about the organization here that you mentioned, and any other information relevant to your visit. Am following up on the issues we talked about, and will revert to you.
