Dear Mr. Epstein,

Thank you for connecting on LinkedIn. I am familiar with some of your philanthropic works, and it's a real pleasure to be in touch.

Based on what limited information I know, I think we share a lot of common interests – from evolutionary biology, to behavioral neuroscience, to efforts to battle HIV/AIDS. If I may share a bit more about myself: my own work primarily considers the evolutionary and biological foundations of human love, intimacy, and sexual behavior – although I also do work on risk-taking, and sexual health. Since 2010 I have been scientific advisor to the online dating site, Match.com – trying to apply some of our research in various ways.

In a few months my coauthored book will be released with Harvard University Press, Evolution and Human Sexual Behavior:

If you might like to find some time to chat further, I would very much enjoy doing so. I will be in NYC with family during the holidays, so if you too will be there perhaps we can even meet in person.

Well, I just wanted to reach out to say hello and let you know I was very pleased to see your name on LinkedIn!

Very best,

Justin
