she is a [REDACTED] i have not seen her in years. re mem services that's the points everyone in the audience knows they rose above and are now performing a ritual with fake cudos, crocodile tears, and as i recall sometime even accompanied by thee appropriate music, roue, rebel, original, artist, cmon do it, get out of the mass sharing connected muush

She [REDACTED] You must have left quite an impression for her to make such a historically off-piste choice. Regarding the below: that's more or less an accurate description of the story. I'm assuming she's one of your former wards? Is she for real? I can't imagine this is a story that could be turned

[REDACTED]

I've had a lot of friends die but I've not been to too many mem services. And never a single bar mitzvah but my own. The only memorial service I remember affecting me for its sincerity and joy was George Plimpton's. I think he was neglectful of his children, but they rose above it gracefully and spoke honestly at the service.

not surprised. -- sorry, i just spent a half hour on the phone with woody, listening to the similaritys between memorial services and bar mitzvahs. having to make inane speeches, fake emotions, tired old faces, old ideas, hypocritical blather, question, but when do you actually have to go to one. your own child. your parents .

Hi Jeffrey,
Hope all is well! The producer of the movie "Precious" likes the story [REDACTED]. He has recommended several men, but think because the story is about a woman, a female screenwriter would be better. Do you know any?
